Seats not for you

JAMES Lipton is more gracious onstage than he was in an audience this week. During one of many packed movie premieres at the Ziegfeld, we saw the "Inside the Actors Studio" host and his guest put their coats over the seats in front of them and then tell all who dared to sit, "Those are taken!" As the lights dimmed, Lipton barked at a man who tried to sit down, and an entire row ended up shifting over for him to find a seat. When two more late guests arrived, Lipton and his date told them they were holding the seats for others, sniffing, "People are sitting there." With the movie starting, the pair sat in them anyway. An angry Lipton huffed to his guest, "Can you still see?" The mystery guests for whom he was holding the seats never seemed to materialize.

Models take sides

THE IMG Models holiday party at Gilded Lily in Chelsea on Wednesday night looked like a high school dance because, "Male and female models were totally split — guys on one side, girls on the other," a guest reports. Spotted were beauties Emily DiDonato (above), Jules Mordevents, Xiao Wen and Hanne Gaby Odiele, fotog James Macari, IMG's Ivan Bart, Victoria's Secret's Ed Razek and Susanne Bartsch. Singer Natalia Kills performed for the agency, which celebrated the same day it was acquired by WME.

LINDSAY Lohan has been hanging with a group of high-flying teenagers since her stint in rehab — but even the youth crowd seems to have tired of the 27-year-old "actress" because she's just too "childish."

Sources say premature cougar Lohan even creepily crashed a recent party for the "Rich Kids of Instagram" crowd — where her former love interest, 18-year-old male model Morgan O'Connor, was hanging with friends — and then ordered all the young women there to leave before locking herself in a bedroom.

"She finds out where Morgan is, then shows up and causes problems," said a friend of the dreadlocked model, adding that Lohan was recently miffed O'Connor hadn't returned her calls, then tracked him down and caused a scene.

"Morgan was staying at the Dream Downtown, and Lindsay showed up and found out which room he was in," said a spy. "She knocked on his door, came in and started bitching Morgan out. She was ordering all the girls to leave, telling one that her Balmain jeans were fake. She said she wouldn't leave till they all left. These kids are 18."

A witness said hotel security arrived and, "They honestly didn't know what to do. They assumed it was Lohan's room." Then, Lindsay "called her dad and locked herself in a bedroom and wouldn't come out," our source said. "It's childish stuff. She's chronically distraught. Every time she comes around, she causes problems. Morgan's modeling, he's going to the gym, working for charities — he's got stuff to do. He doesn't want to be around Lindsay or her behavior."

A source said that when Lohan subsequently spotted O'Connor — son of Newport and Palm Beach socialite and former Town & Country cover girl Pamela O'Connor, and a face of Polo's spring 2014 collection — with a girl his own age at LIV in Miami, she "ran up and kissed him, then tried to kick the girl out."

Lohan has also been linked to model Liam Dean, 19, and Liam Neeson's teen son Michael O'Connor couldn't be reached. Lohan's rep didn't get back to us. A Dream rep wouldn't comment.

Prisoner of mold

NOT every TV star is living in a multimillion-dollar pad. In fact, former "30 Rock" comic Judah Friedlander's holed up in Queens on an air mattress in an apartment with no heat and no hot water.

Plug gets pulled

HOURS before Katie Couric hosted a holiday special for her syndicated show "Katie," she broke the news that her show would not be back for a third season. Couric's show had its way to cancellation after a sluggish performance, further said Couric herself had doubts about the second season. On Thursday, she and ABC announced to pull the plug, saying they'd "mutually agree to end the show." Couric addressed the news broke. A spy said, "She told them she's proud of them. She also acknowledged the awkward timing of announcing the news two hours before their holiday party, but she wanted them to hear it from her." As a consolation, staffers received cashmere gloves as a holiday gift from Couric, and "Katie" will continue to tape new episodes till June, to finish its second season. Couric recently struck a deal to move to Yahoo as its "global anchor," for which she's reportedly making about $6 million a year.

Sightings . . .

DC 'Wolf' break

AFTER Leonardo DiCaprio (above) and Martin Scorsese personally delivered a "The Wolf of Wall Street" screener to President Obama on Wednesday, the pair headed over to the nearby W Hotel rooftop to kick back, spies said. The director and star were seen with seven others at the spot, which enjoys a plum view overlooking the White House. We're told DiCaprio was wearing "a dark coat and cap" but, contrary to his hard-partying Jordan Belfort character in the film, he stuck to drinking tea.
